

— A MEMBER-RUN MUTUAL SUPPORT CIRCLE

When one family needs help, everyone gives a little.

Brothers & Sisters (Brossis), registered in the state of Washington in the United States, is a member-run mutual support circle, built on Telegram and TON. Members set aside a small, shared contribution — and when a member passes away after completing the one-year waiting period, the community can provide 10,000 USDT in funeral assistance to the family representative they named.

— HOW IT WORKS

Six simple steps to becoming a member

Brossis is designed to make membership simple: become a member through Telegram, connect your wallet, complete identity verification, choose a family representative, and maintain active membership.

Before you start: Telegram and a Telegram Wallet

Brossis runs entirely inside Telegram, so all you need to get going is the free Telegram app and a Telegram Wallet — both take just a couple of minutes to set up, with no separate downloads, seed phrases to write down, or crypto experience required.

If you don't already have Telegram, download it from telegram.org or your phone's app store and create an account with your phone number. Then open the built-in Wallet inside Telegram (search "Wallet" or tap the wallet icon in Settings) to create your TON wallet in a few taps — it's ready to use immediately.

01 Become a member through Telegram Open the Brossis Mini App inside Telegram, with an invite from an existing member. No separate app download needed.	02 Connect a TON wallet Use Telegram's own built-in Wallet — the easiest option, set up in a couple of minutes with no seed phrase to manage — or link any other TON-compatible wallet and sign a message to verify you own it.	03 Make your initial contribution Provide 35 USDT initially: 25 USDT for your Community Reserve Fund and 10 USDT for the annual membership fee.
04 Verify with Didit A quick identity check confirms you're a real, distinct person — one membership per person, always. Membership is open to individuals aged 18 to 65.	05 Choose your family representative Choose the person who will communicate with Brossis and represent your family when you pass away as a qualified member and community assistance is needed.	06 Maintain active membership Once your membership is activated, your one-year waiting period begins. Community assistance can only be provided after one full year of continuous active membership.

— THE MATH, IN ONE EXAMPLE

Meaningful assistance, made possible by many small shares

The Community Reserve Fund is designed to help the community respond when a member's family needs support. For illustration, if 25,000 active members each maintain a 25 USDT balance, the community reserve would equal 625,000 USDT. After an approved 10,000 USDT assistance payment, the community contribution needed to replenish that payment would be 0.40 USDT per active member.

25,000 members × 25 USDT	625,000 USDT reserve
Approved community assistance	-10,000 USDT
10,000 USDT ÷ 25,000 members	0.40 USDT per member
Illustrative reserve after replenishment	625,000 USDT

— TRUST & GOVERNANCE

Built around community, transparency and accountability

Brossis is designed as a member-run mutual support community. Its public model focuses on shared contributions, community assistance, transparent records and member governance.

Identity verification, once per person

Every member verifies their identity through Didit, a third-party identity verification provider — government ID, a liveness check, and a duplicate check — before their membership goes active. This keeps the circle honest: one person, one membership, one voice.

- Government ID and liveness verification
 - Duplicate-membership detection across the whole platform
 - No raw identity documents stored unless legally required

Assistance requests, reviewed with community oversight

When a family representative submits an assistance request, it is checked against membership records and required documents, then reviewed through the Brossis review process. Approved assistance is authorized only after the required review and approvals.

- Administrative and document review
- Five-member Review Circle, minimum three approvals
- Full audit trail of every vote

Payments, released by multisig

Approved support and referral rewards move in USDT, authorized by a multisig wallet rather than any single person, with every transaction hash recorded and visible.

- Multisignature authorization for outgoing payments
- Every payout logged with amount, wallet, and transaction hash

— TRANSPARENCY

— QUESTIONS

Before you become a member

Important: Brossis is a community support model. Eligibility and assistance are subject to the Brossis membership rules, verification and review process. Legal and regulatory requirements may differ by country.

What do I need to sign up?

Just the free Telegram app and a Telegram Wallet, both of which take only a couple of minutes to set up. You don't need any prior crypto experience — the built-in Wallet inside Telegram creates a TON wallet for you in a few taps, with no separate app or seed phrase to manage.

Is there an age requirement to join?

Yes. Membership is open to individuals aged 18 to 65. Age is confirmed as part of identity verification with Didit at the time of application.

Is Brossis insurance?

Brossis is designed as a member-run mutual support community, not presented as an insurance policy. Assistance is subject to the one-year waiting period, verification, community review and the applicable Brossis rules. Regulatory requirements can vary by jurisdiction.

What happens to my contribution?

25 USDT is maintained as your Community Reserve Fund balance. The 10 USDT annual membership fee supports platform operations, ID verification and the referral program. Brossis shall publish actual Community Reserve Fund and payment information.

How much community funeral assistance is provided?

The maximum assistance amount is 10,000 USDT for every member, regardless of region of residence. Amounts are subject to the one-year waiting period, verification and the applicable Brossis rules in effect at the time of the assistance request.

What is the 25 USDT Community Reserve Fund balance?

The 25 USDT is the member's Community Reserve Fund balance. It is intended to support the community assistance pool and is distinct from the 10 USDT annual membership fee. To be in good standing, members are expected to top up this balance as it depletes. If a member cancels their membership, their Community Reserve Fund balance is refundable, less any portion already used to support other members' assistance payments.

What does the 10 USDT annual membership fee cover?

The 10 USDT annual membership fee supports Brossis platform operations and the referral program. The 10 USDT annual membership fee is non-refundable.

How is a community assistance request approved?

When a member who has completed the one-year waiting period passes away, the family representative submits an assistance request with the required documentation. Brossis verifies the membership and supporting documents, then completes the applicable community review and approval process before any payment is authorized.

Is there a waiting period before assistance is available?

Yes. Community assistance is only available after a member has maintained one full continuous year of active membership. If a member passes away before completing this one-year waiting period, their family representative cannot receive a community assistance payment, regardless of the circumstances.

Can I change my wallet or my designated recipient later?

Yes. Both go through a short review and waiting period, so changes can't be made in a rush or by someone other than you.

What does the 35 USDT initial contribution include?

The initial 35 USDT consists of a 25 USDT Community Reserve Fund and a 10 USDT annual membership fee.

What do I need to become a member of Brossis?

A Telegram account, a TON-compatible wallet, and 35 USDT to start. New members shall also complete identity verification through Didit and choose a family representative before membership is activated.

How does the referral reward work?

Active members may choose a referral code and share it. When someone who signs up through that code completes verification and becomes an active member, the referring member receives 3 USDT, subject to the applicable Brossis referral terms.

Who decides how the community reserve is used?

Brossis is designed to be governed by its members. Individual assistance requests go through the Brossis review process, and broader decisions about the community reserve are subject to oversight by the Brossis governance structure.

How is my 25 USDT balance replenished?

When the community reserve is used to support a member, each active member's individual Community Reserve Fund is reduced by that member's proportional share — shown in the example above, ranging from 0.40 USDT to 1.00 USDT depending on the assistance amount involved. Members are notified when this happens and are expected to top up the deducted amount to restore their balance to 25 USDT. Maintaining a full 25 USDT balance is part of remaining in good standing.

Why Telegram and TON?

A Telegram Mini App lets Brossis reach members instantly, without requiring a separate Android or iPhone app download, which significantly reduces registration and adoption friction. Telegram also provides built-in community, messaging, referrals and sharing, making it particularly well suited to Brossis's diaspora-focused membership and its 3 USDT referral model. Most importantly, building on Telegram and TON is faster and less expensive to launch and maintain. Brossis can add dedicated Android and iOS apps later if needed.

What is Didit?

Didit is a third-party identity verification service. Brossis uses it to confirm that each member is a real, distinct person — checking a government ID and a quick liveness selfie — before membership can be activated. Didit is not part of Brossis and does not have any role in assistance decisions or fund management.

Is my identity verification information kept private?

Identity verification is carried out through Didit, including a government ID and liveness check. Brossis does not store raw identity documents unless legally required; verification status and a reference ID are retained instead.
